Koegel Tips

Preparing the Grill: Obviously you want to make sure everything is clean, before you start grilling. Also, make sure to use few coals or low heat so that the outside of the product does not burn while the inside is not yet hot.

Serving your guests: You want to check in with your guests to see how they like their meats served. Some like their hot dogs split open, others like them burnt and some like golden brown. So you want to make sure your guests are happy.

Pre cooked Vs. Frozen: All Koegel products are cooked and ready to eat, so they only need to be heated through to enhance their flavor but they can be eaten cold. What's nice about pre-cooked products are they take less time to prepare and your guests won't be waiting as long to eat.

Gas vs Charcoal: It's all about personal preferences. Some believe you can get more flavor from burning charcoal, but with the Koegel products all you are doing is heating the product, so the flavor comes from the product not the grill.
